WHAT THE UNIVERSAL LAW IS.

Boston's Famous Divine Shows Wherein the World's Fair Might Fail---He Declares that All Christian Nations Have Closed Their Exhibits on the Sabbath.

"CHICAGO, ILLS., April 19.-A large audience filled the Trinity English Lutheran church Sunday evening to listen to the discourse of the Rev. Joseph Cook, of Boston, on "Sunday and the World's Fair." The Rev. Mr. Cook launched into his subject at once and said:

"The constitution of the United States by two words protects the rights of the President to one day's rest in every seven, for in prescribing the time when his duties shall be performed the phrase is used, 'Sundays excepted.' Now, I maintain that every workingman in the republic ought to be proman in the republic ought to be protected in his right to one day's rest in the week? as, well as the President. Those two words should be the germ from which a national rest law should be developed. When the last World's Fair was held in Paris, England covered her exhibit on the Sabbath, and her example was followed by the English-speaking people generally, by our representations among the others. The continental customs were in this, respect disregarded. At Philadelphia the gates were closed and the saleof whisky forbidden. I am here to-night to speak against a proposition that is an insult against a proposition that is an insult to those who desire good government. When the decalogue was given the Sabbath was not then proclaimed FOR THE FIRST TIME.

I have a great respect for an institution which has lasted so long. Sunday has swung too long on the waves of time to swing too long on the waves of time to disappear. Do you think to abolish it? Five thousand years have not been able to do it. What does science say? There is a certain divine authority about science. Physicians tell us that we can do more work when we rest one day in seven than if we should work all the time. A man works on Monday. He begins work on Tuesday at a little lower level, and so on through the week. He loses more energy than he gains, but if leses more energy than he gains, but if he rests on Sunday he regains the level of the previous Sunday. If he does not he plunges into the work of the next week at a lower level, and finally breaks down.
"It has been shown by experience "It has been shown by experience man to

"It has been shown by experience that it is better for a working man to work ten hours a day for six days than to work eight hours a day for seven. To turn now to the political side. What will happen in this country if you let the saloonkeepers destroy our Sunday? Somebody has well said, "Liquor and leisure never meet but for mischief." Which shall go down—the Sabbath or the saloon? Little by little you will secularize your Sabbath if you do not close your saloons. The annual number secularize your Sabbath if you do not close your saloons. The annual number of murders has doubled within recent years. How do I account for it? By the failure to preserve the proper observance of the Sabbath day and the encouragement given to saloons. The government must not dictate religion to any man, but it has a right to maintain a civic day of rest. No government, that does not maintain the Sunday laws, is a friend of the toiling poor. No editor that does not support those laws is a friend to such. I think we could get along without the Sunday newspaper. You say it has come to stay. So you said about slavery, but it is gone.

"THERE ARE YOUNG MEN "THERE ARE YOUNG MEN

that wake up on Sunday morning with no idea of how they shall pass the day. They spend it reading the newspaper. The class of people that stay away from the church is constantly increasing, and the church is constantly increasing, and the Sunday newspaper is the guide, philosopher, and friend of that class. Do you expect the pulpit to compete with a horse race or a prize fighter or a Sunday theatrical performance or a Sunday newspaper by employing their methods? Sunday papers make it more and more difficult for the churches to reach the passes and it will become in reach the masses, and it will become in-creasingly difficult if you allow the Sab-bath to be still further secularized.

bath to be still further secularized.

"Now, what has the local committee in Chicago done? They have given permission to restaurants to sell wine, ale and beer diter the fashion of hotels? Now, in what attitude does this place the nation. The rum-sellers of London have lately scattered whisky on the sidewalks in front of their saloons, that the furner stains to the next the secularity of sidewards in rout of their saloons, that the fumes rising to the nostrils of pass-ers-by might draw them inside. Is it expected that the Goddess of Liberty will sprinkle the sidewalks of the fair at Chicago for the highly an except Chicago for the shallow reason that we ought to treat foreigners as they

"You have in this country thirty-five states requiring that instruction shall be given to the children about the nature and effects of intoxicating drinks and tobacco. These states have taken an attitude that makes the opening of a national saloon an insult to them; is an insult to our churches also. Here are four great denominations that exclude liquor sellers from membership—Con-gregationalists, Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians. When the

by their thousands of members shall the government persist in going into the saloon business for the money there is, in it? Shall we, in the face of the danger, authorize the government to open saloons?

"Who will have the final authority? The national commissioners, of which there are two from each state. It is there are two from each state. It is upon their vote that the question turns. The churches should therefore petition these commissioners to prohibit the selling of liquor and the desecration of the Sabbath. Massachusetts and Kentucky have already passed resolutions to keep their exhibits covered on Sunday what ever other states may dear day, what ever other states may do. I am encouraged to believe that the liquor trade will be outlawed as well as that slavery has been abolished and the Louisiana State Lottery suppressed. You think that you can do nothing about this question. Let us have some backbone about the matter."

The congregation by a rising vote passed resolutions recommending the closing of the World's Fair on Sunday.

A mass meeting of citizens was held this morning for the purpose of taking action. Thousands were in attendance.
